Is it even worth the effort to sell your products to the international market?

So many things to worry about – International credit card fraud, distribution challenges, package rejection, and language barriers

But...2/3 of the global market resides outside the U.S. with the international eCommerce market growing 51% faster than the U.S. market.

With over 60 years experience in technology and international logistics, we have mastered the complexities of doing business internationally. We're proven experts... and we're dedicated to your success.

Consider this. On average, consumer products routinely cost twice as much internationally as they do in the United States.

If you can develop the ability to sell products—at U.S. prices—to international markets, you can experience a significant increase in sales without sacrificing profits.

Unfortunately, barriers such as localization, foreign money systems and expensive, confusing overseas delivery processes have made selling products internationally practically impossible for many U.S. eCommerce merchants.

Until now...

World Market Express

We've pioneered a revolutionary system that enables you to sell products internationally with unparalleled ease and efficiency, and at very little cost.

We solve your international problems

World Market Express takes over the inevitable challenges and headaches of going global

- International credit card fraud
- Duty miscalculations resulting in abandoned shipments
- Costly international returns
- Export compliance and documentation
- Currency exchange and alternate payment methods
- International customer service

How does World Market Express work?

- As an international consumer finishes shopping, they click on a “World Market Express” link located on your shopping cart page.
- The customer and all of their shopping cart data are immediately transferred to our shopping cart—branded with your logo and identity.
- The customer then selects which country they want to ship to and the currency they will be using.
- Not only are all product prices converted into the desired currency, the customer also sees the complete total “landed cost” including duties, taxes, and optimized shipping and handling fees.
- The customer then pays the total amount in their desired currency, and the confirmed order data and payment is sent to you in U.S. dollars.
- You in turn ship all orders to our consolidation center in the U.S.
- Packages are then inspected and repackaged as necessary, customs documentation is generated, international shipping labels are printed and the packages are then shipped to the customer.

Getting started is easy

Three simple steps —

- 1) Give us a list of your item codes and product descriptions. Assuming you have product shots and thumbnails, we need those too.
- 2) Put a “World Market Express” checkout link on your website—we even provide the necessary html code.
- 3) Provide us with a unique “coupon code” or other ID to allow everyone to clearly identify the orders in your systems placed through World Market Express.

That's it!

Going Global Is As Easy As Doing Business Next Door.

With World Market Express handling your international orders, customers from outside of the U.S. can purchase your products quickly. They will know the total cost upfront, and they will receive the best possible shipping/handling fees available anywhere.
